

N – This group was called Focused Fire and focuses on Anger Management. The group began with a brief check in and refreshments we served .We discussed what will be covered in the group as an introduction to the class. We discussed that Anger is an emotion to be understood. We talked about anger as an emotion and taught that if we are able to become aware of our feelings then we are able to prevent outbursts of anger that can have negative consequences. We went over the anger volcano and discussed the following questions; does not bother me at all, makes me feel a little uncomfortable, makes me feel stressed, this upsets me, and I'm going to explode.

A – In this session the clients learned how they respond to anger and the clients responded to how they do respond to anger. The clients wrote their response to their anger volcano and discussed their response with the group. The clients we open to discussion and Behavioral Cognitive Therapy was used. The clients wrote on their handouts and took notes as the lecture applied to them. Each told stories of how they had responded to anger and how now they know that anger has caused relationship and family problems.

The client was open to discussion and gave valuable feedback to coping skills that they have learned.

P – to continue recovery support services, and to maintain sobriety.
