

N – This group was called Focused Fire and focuses on Anger Management. The group began with a brief check in and refreshments we served .We discussed what will be covered in the group as an introduction to the class. We discussed that Anger is an emotion to be understood. We talked about anger as an emotion and taught that if we are able to become aware of our feelings then we are able to prevent outbursts of anger that can have negative consequences. The group was given a handout on anger. the group responded by writing their thoughts, and were to share with the group. The group shared how their body reacts when they get angry, what sensation goes on in their body, what they think when angry, what they say when they are angry, what their face looks like when they are angry, and how they calm themselves down when they are angry.

A – In this session the clients learned how they respond to anger and the clients responded to how they do respond to anger. The clients wrote their response to their anger volcano and discussed their response with the group. The clients we open to discussion and Behavioral Cognitive Therapy was used. The clients wrote on their handouts and took notes as the lecture applied to them. Each told stories of how they had responded to anger and how now they know that anger has caused relationship and family problems. The group was open to discussion and gave valuable feedback to coping skills that they have learned.

Client was active in group discussion and shared valuable feedback.

P – To continue recovery support services, and to maintain sobriety. To cope with anger in a positive way.
